

SUPERHEROES

A bright day awaits me,
Uncertainty blinds me too.
Yet I need to mend the flaws,
And dash through the maze ahead.

Oh, how I feel weary within,
My wings broken.
There ain't no being for my rescue,
But I will rise.

My old self mortifies me,
But now I stand bold.
For I am stronger than fear,
For I am the conqueror.

What changed?
I realized, sometimes,
Just sometimes,
I need to be my own superhero

He has always been my well wisher

I have in my life...

He is not an actor,
He is my superhero and also my role model

SUPERHEROES

My Superhero

His eyes speak of loyalty,
His attitude fills me with serenity.

His four pink paws,
Makes my heart go 'aww'.

His wagging tail overflows with love,
He lifts my spirits up, up and above.

His black and brown coat,
Is something nobody can loath.

Yes, he's not a human,
But yes he's my superhero.

SUPERHEROES

Who is a super hero, is he like the Mask of Zorro?

Ranging from the Roman Nero to the Egyptian
Pharaoh

Did they live like a hero?

Hero is the one,
who is as vibrant as the Sun,
Who is always on the run,
Without time for any fun.

He is the one who hides in a Burrow,
For all bad thugs he is a fighting Guru.

But a real hero is a person,
Who follows the path of Dharma, to wipe out all of his karmas.

A hero is someone who has the courage to oppose,
But he is not the person to be found in a photo pose.

The hero within you is realized by only few
A real hero is the person who keeps his face grim Even at his life's rim.

SUPERHEROES

Strength of a stone
Foundation of a rock
That man is a success –
He who makes the world better
Than how it was found
Who has never lacked Appreciation of Earth's beauty and love
Or failed to express it
Who looked for the best in others
And also gave the best he had My loving dad you have been
My building block
Wings of an angel
Hail of the almighty

A true friend we could turn to
When times were good or bad
I wish I can be
The person you want me to be
I hope that you know
How much I look up to you
And I just want to say that
One of my greatest blessings –
That man that I can call dad
Who is and will always remain as my SUPERHERO!

He cannot be seen but only be felt

Nobody can replace him in whom

Unfathomable power resides

Magnificent he stands

Awesomeness he believes

Naughtiest of all

Who never lets me fall

SUPERHEROES

Batman, Superman, Ironman
Wonder woman, Flash, Vision
All superheroes in their own right
Because of their sense of justice and might
But they are also helpful, kind and brave
Things our parents are everyday
Rocks of support and strength in the sea of life Pushing us up, by helping us bear the burden of life's strife
However will I thank them?
The gold mine's most beautiful gems
Never letting us lose sight
Never stars just twinkling ones that burn bright.

SUPERHEROES

An ocean of superheroes to choose from

Like the gods in the Hindu religion

With a different tale to tell

Like the gods in the Hindu religion

All come from different parts of the universe,

With powers unique to their conscience

Like the gods in the Hindu religion

Indefinite in numbers are they

Like the gods in the Hindu religion

These are my superheroes, the next gods of the future.

SUPERHEROES

For me my father is my role model

My father is my superhero

For many people it might be Batman

For me though, my father is my Superman.

He is the first one who will stand by me when I'm in trouble

And he is the first one who will love me unconditionally

All those times he has celebrated for me

He is the one who gets happy for every hurdle that I cross

I will make you proud one day father

Though you don't have the power to fly nor do you have super gadgets

You still are and always will be my superhero.

SUPERHEROES

Born as an atheist in the land of gods,
A young boy who learnt to meditate in the arati hall.
Devoted his life to the nation,
And inspired others to do the same.
He proved the mightiness of the pen over the sword.
Shackled by the encroachers of our country,
As he fought for her freedom.
In spite of all this the fire of patriotism burnt within.
One trip had turned the tables of his life.

This inquisitiveness changed the way he looked at the enlightened ones.
From an atheist he metamorphosed into a spiritual master.

The Himalayas turned his home,
Soon the world was Inspired by the Ganges,
He roared the words of Lord Krishna.
Lighting the lamps of devotion was his way of service.
When the odds are against us,
His life gives us the strength to bounce back up.
This is an ode to our superhero,

My True Superheroes

Superheroes protect and save the world, they say,
But they are untrue and imaginary, aren't they?
Our true heroes are the army, by the way,
Away from family and comforts they stay,
They work for our safety and protection all day.

They have fleets of ships, trucks and jets,
If any problem befalls us they are ready and set,
Standing consciously and alert behind the fencing net,
But appreciation and recognition from us they don't get,
So we must be thankful, proud and applaud them with respect.

SUPERHEROES

Every time you saw me outside your window
You would dash to the door even when you couldn't Greeting me pressing your forehead
And by patting your lips on my forehead
Every ounce of information you shared with me for hours
Will remain unforgotten
Because its authenticity was certified by your intuitions
Every step you took was planned with logic
Every act of yours agreed with your ethics
And so was your leaving
Planned systematically and peacefully
How can I ever forget
How you taught me how to eat sweets?
'First divide the sweet into half
And then relish every bite you take.'
I would do anything to talk to you one last time
But it's hard to accept the impossible
Through your every second of presence in my life
You've inspired me and taught me how to face life.
This is my tribute to you Appachi
Your presence will be felt...
Every time I achieve the impossible
I know that you're watching me
And I will look after myself until I reach you Until then I'll miss you
Regards
Your loving grand daughter.

SUPERHEROES

Everything had changed in an instant
Nothing would ever be the same
The accident had toppled them over
Leaving just him and her
All alone to face the world
All alone to face what lay ahead of them
But he told her, "Don't you worry.
As long as I'm with you, there's nothing
That can ever happen to you."

Now, years later, when she remembers those times
The times when life had been unsympathetic to her
All she can think of, are his words
He had stood by what he said.
And while he made sure that she stays warm in the harshest of winters
She knew she had found a superhero in her brother.

Saving me with your Gallant superhero cape.
You swooped down
And nourish me to health
Your caring hands
Erasing the tears from my face
Your weapon is your love
It is because of you that I smile
So go on, and I will follow thee
Till my last breath, with truth and loyalty
My superhero. MY MOM.

All Great Heroes Do

You may get hurt in life

You may lose people

And you may realize that no matter how much time you spend with them

Or how much you valued them, or told them so

It will never seem enough

And if I could tell you one thing, it would be:

You are never as broken as you think you are Sure, you have a couple of scars

And a couple of bad memories

But then again

All great heroes do.

SUPERHEROES

Every night I look up at the stairs,
Remembering the day, without any scars.
I always remember our true superheroes,
The true superheroes we really need to thank .

Newspapers keep filling with mentions of them,
Not for their achievements, but only their problems.
While every citizen does about this,
Ignorant, they remain, of their integral contributions.

Be it serving our borders, or serving food on our plates,
Their duties, they dutifully perform, not for praise.
I think it's time to pay our true heroes respect,
Soldiers and farmers! May your service never be in vain!
