

Colours

Colours are so beautiful,
Colours make this Earth.
Colours are so wonderful,
They are of gold's worth.

You are made of colour,
And I'm made of them too.
But our shades do differ,
Just as you and I do.

The radiant light of the sun,
The midnight's silent darkness,
They're all made of colours,
You can believe if you want.

Colours are so wonderful,
Colours make this world.
Colours are so wonderful,
They are of gold's worth.

Colours

Colours enlighten our minds,
Colours make stars shine.
Colours differ,
And so do we.

Colours display care,
Colours we share.
Colours add life,
To the eyes of the blind.

Without colours, there is nothing,
Colours sometimes can even make you sing.
Oh! Colours are beautiful,
They make this world wonderful.

Colours

There are so many colours,
Yellow, orange and blue.
Our life is a big canvas of colours,
They add magic to our lives.
From space, you can see, the colourful earth,
Even the majestic red Mars.
Without the world there are no colours,
Without colours, there is no world.
My colour in school is the royal blue,
It excels everywhere.
I love the colour blue,
It is the colour of sky, ocean and ink.
It is my favourite colour.

Colours

Colours of forgiveness,
Colours of affection,
Colours of truthfulness,
And colours of unity.

Red represents anger,
Pink signifies softness,
Black denotes darkness,
And white depicts peace.

Colours are miraculous,
Colours are magical,
Colours are imaginary,
Colours are combinations.

Colours

Colours make our world paradise,
Colours make our lives colourful,
Colours make our needs attractive,
And colours make us feel joyful.

Colours are in feelings,
Colours are seen in deeds.

When it's white; it's peace.

When it's blue; it's calmness.

When it's red; it's anger.

When it's yellow; it's joy.

If peach, then skin.

If black, then hair.

If white, then eyes.

And if pink, then lips.

Colours are creations which create this paradise,
The creator is God who is painter from heaven.

Colours

Purity is white,
Prosperity is green,
Sacrifice is saffron,
And peace is blue.
Our world is miniature,
Painted in multi-colour.
It's filled with different colours,
Blue, pink and green.
We sometimes call it heaven,
Or even call it paradise,
It's beautiful and colourful,
Given to us from God.
He is the decorator from heaven,
Who beautified our world,
He filled it with colours,
He filled it with joy.

Colours

Colours are happiness,
They give us joy.

White represents peace,
While black represents dullness.

Colours are a gift from God,
We could say we live in paradise.
My favourite is definitely green,
Which represents trees and prosperity.

Land, water and nature,
All filled with colour,
Colours beautify the world,
Colours are things we love.

Colours

Pink, red, purple and white,
Colours are love, they can unite.
Colours bring up things to life,
They just need to be used right.

The beautiful colour; it is green,
Nature is the epitome of clean.
Whenever I want to look bright,
The best is always the colour white.

Yellow is the colour of the flower,
It depicts graceful power.
Colours symbolize unity,
And bring out everyone's inner beauty.

Colours

Colours paint our life bright,
Some colours are dark,
And some are very bright.

Blue is Lord Krishna,
Red is anger.
Green is for nature,
And yellow is the sun.

These four colours are my favourite,
And when I see them,
I feel very happy.
Colours fill my life with joy.

Colours

Colours are something,
That play a major role.
They give life to everything,
From the sky to your soul.

Sometimes, they're bright,
Sometimes they're dull.
Blue is for boys,
And pink, for girls.

Look closely and sharply,
And you'll find them everywhere.
Colours are something,
For everyone to share.

Colours

Why do we need colours?

Is it to see flowers?

Red is for love,

White is for the dove.

Yellow is for the sun,

Brown is for the bun!

Rainbows make us feel happy,

As well as naughty.

Colours help us define;

Otherwise, we'd be confined.

Bring some colour into your life,

And let go of all your strife.

Colours

Colours make our life colourful,
Representing different states of our life.

Like a colour of happiness,
A colour of sadness,
A colour of peace,
A colour of violence.

Colours fill this world with beauty,
And makes it admirable.

Without colours, our world;
Would be plain and boring.

Colours make our drawing beautiful.
Colours add life.

Colours

Colours are the source of life,
Without them, life would be bland.
If you want to avoid pain and strife

Observe nature.

Filled with a lot of colours,
Oh, yes it does.

Colours play a main role,
In what we do; they do take a toll.

They come in so many hues,
Light and bright and white as a goose.

Colours

Colours are so wonderful, aren't they?
Varieties in them; white, blue and grey.
The whole world is filled with colours,
Forests, sanctuaries, and even jungles.

The universe is filled with different colours,
Helping in expressing emotions.
Sparkling the world with magic,
Or can be used to show something tragic.

The sky is blue and the roses are red.
There's the colour yellow in tasty bread.
The game of chess is black and white,
Now, I see hues in such different light.

Colours

Colours are very bright,
I like it when they shine.
They are also sometimes light,
Which makes them all the nicer.
They have such great variety,
Some are grand and mighty,
And colours like red, yellow, blue;
They cannot even be created.
Mix them in the right proportion,
You can make any shade you like.
They make us smarter and brighter,
And make our world admirable.
There is nothing here,
That isn't of a colour.
If you start naming them,
List will never end.
I love colours,
And I'm sure you do too.

Colours

There is no beauty without colours,
Not even the beauty of a flower.

There is colour in everything,
Even in a honey bee's sting.

Colours are everywhere,
Including on your teddy bear.

There would be no rainbow,
If there wasn't blue, red and yellow.

There would be no Santa,
If there was no magenta.

Long ago, it was black and white movies,
But fear not, for now we have.

In colours too many.

Colours

Everywhere we go, we find colours,
From a stone to sweet-smelling flowers.
When these colours are our friends,
They get blended and change our trends.
They make the black and white eyes,
Which help us see beautiful skies.
Colours create the magical rainbow,
And to its splendor, we all do bow.
When colours are splashed across the evening sky,
There is nothing that equals the stunning sky.
But when these colours become our enemies,
They hurt and torture you and me.
Sow the poisonous seeds of discrimination,
In this culturally diverse nation.
Let us not comment on anyone's image,
But let us admire their colourful skills and courage.

Colours

Colours create a new you,
Black and white can be you.
Red and white like candy canes,
Green and yellow like sugarcanes.

Red, orange, blue,
Colours consist of tints, shades and hues.
Purple and yellow, pink and green,
Colours like this haven't you seen?

Black and white like tiles and files,
Are also seen on roads for miles.

Colours are there everywhere,
You look and see them here and there.

Colours

Green, orange, black and blue,
Home to nature, they are so true.
They make our lives graceful,
our day very beautiful.

Present here and there and everywhere,
Shiny colours shot up in a flare,
Every colour has a different shade,
No one knows how they are made.

Filled in the drawers of the child's closet,
There to witness every event's onset,
Colours! Colours! Brighten my life,
Take me up, remove my strife.

Colours

Colours are the source of our beauty,
Making our life, oh! So lively.
The way you can't separate a child from her toy,
You just can't separate colours from their joy.

If there were no colours,
There'd be no dresses or flowers.
Each colour has a meaning,
Which symbolizes a way of being.

White is the colour of peace,
Sweet as honey, and calm as a breeze.
Colours may even be sharp as lightning,
But they make, our lives worth living.

Colours

Pink is the colour of emotions,
The colour of happiness and smiles.

Red is the colour of love,
The colour of roses, but anger too.

Blue is the colour of the seas,
The colour of vast skies, and Krishna.

Nature brightens our day,
With these beautiful colours.

A rainbow has all the radiant colours,
They fill our day with joy.
So, let our life be colourful and bright,
Not just the old black and white.
